GRIZZLY BEAR ADAMS. - The death of Adams the celebrated Western hunter, at Nefatal enemy of the grizzly bears that has lived iu latter days:

Young Adams was born in Maine, May, the reception of his mother. In 1848, Adams joined the great army of gold-hunters who left the Atlantic States for the Pacific coast, and for the 10 years following passed his time as a hunter among the mountains and time as a hunter among the had numerous startling adventures with the wild boasts number of bears, brought them to San Franeisco, and was subsequently engaged to exhibit them in the city by Nixon and Barnum. In this city "Old Adams" attracted much more attention than even the wild beasts he exhibited. He was a splendid looking man, with a long grey beard, a keen, magnetic eye, which cowed down almost at a glance the large brutes over which he held such singular sway. In Italy he would have served painters and sculptors as a model of "Moses," but in this country he was known only as a trainer of wild beast. The picturesque costume of far and skins which he adopted when in the ring became him well. A few week ago "Old Adams" published a tolerably well-written book, giving an account of with bears in California, he received many frightful wounds. He was several times scalped by the brutes, and while he was in this city suffering severely from the effects his wounds, he consulted the College of Physicians and Surgeons, but was told that his he has at last succumbed under these scratches and bites.

A PERFECT WIFE .- Edmund Burke's beau ideal of a perfect wife is worthy of consideration by our fair friends. Here it is:

"A perfect wife is handsome, but it is not a beauty arising from the features, from complexion, or from shape. She has all three in high degree, but it is not by these that she touches the heart; it is all that sweetness of temper, benevolence, innocence and sensibility which a face can express, that forms her beauty. She has a face that just rouses your attention at first sight, it grows upon you every moment, and you wonder that it did not more than rise your attention at first. Her eyes have a mild light, but they awe when she pleases; they command, like a good man out of office, not by authority, but by virtue. Her statue is not tall, she is not made to be the admiration of every one. She has the firmness that does not exclude delicacy, all the softness that does not imply weakness .-Her voice is soft, low music, not formed to rule in public assemblies, but to charm those who can distinguish a company from a crowd: it has its advantage; you must come close to hear it. To describe her body, describe her mind, one is the transcript of the other. Her understanding is not shown in the variety of matter it exerts itself upon, but the To-day, you will find the following extra bargains odness of the choice she makes. Her politeness flows rather from a natural disposi- and good quality and no mistake tion to oblige than any rules on that subject, understand good breeding, and those who do

GARIBALDI AND THE HUNGARIANS .- Gariibaldi has issued one decree which cannot fail to stir the bile of Austria, for it refers to the Hungarian volunteers. Depots are opened at Naples and Messina for Hungarian recruits, and it is given out that Garibaldi has pledged himself to repay Hungarian service with his sword.

BLUE EYES .- It is said that all the Presidents of the United States, except General Harrison, had blue eyes. Among the great men of the world the blue eyes appear to have been predominant. Socrates, Shakeslin, Napoleon, and Humboldt, all had blue
